As Covid 19 rages throughout the world, tearing apart the lives of people, leaving in its wake death, misery and suffering, people are in the state of shock. In these very trying times, doctors, nurses have risen to the occasion and have fought against the deadly virus, saving many precious lives. In this period of uncertainty, another faction that has worked tirelessly is the Teachers. If doctors have saved lives, teachers are trying to save livelihoods by taking classes online. Remember, it is Gurus who prepare the future presidents, prime ministers, CEO's etc

Teaching is not fun and frolic as it's made out to be. It's hard work at best of times. Right now it is a trial because children's future is at stake. Studies must go on, no matter what. These Covid fighters, these brave men and women, who are carrying on their duties despite all odds, must be applauded. They are unsung, unheard of, often facing ire of concerned parents, handling unruly children, yet they never complain.

The contribution of Teachers in this very difficult time is no less than that of medical fraternity.
